From the Pastor's heart

Over the years, I have lived in seven different countries. Each move meant starting over in a place where I knew no one. My first experience away from home came at just 16 years old, when I left to pursue theology for my undergraduate degree in a country different from where I was raised.

I remember the questions swirling in my mind: Will I survive the food? Am I equipped for this? Will I make friends? With no clear answers, I went anyway. When I arrived, reality set in—sleeping on a thin three-inch foam mattress over plywood, showering in water barely filtered from a nearby pond, and fighting off endless mosquitoes. The food, language, and way of life were foreign to me, yet I clung to one thing: God's promise that He would be with me. I carried the prayers of my parents, grandmother, and family, who had placed me into God's hands.

There's a phrase from my culture that was spoken over me: "O ou māmā na"—translated, "those are your lungs." It meant that just as lungs are essential to breathe, this journey would be vital to my life. God's breath would sustain me through both highs and lows.

As we begin this new school year, I want to share that same blessing with our community—Burman, PAA, CHCS, PACES: those are your lungs. May every challenge and opportunity become a place where God breathes new life into you, your families, and our students.

Looking back, I realize that while I would have welcomed a few more comforts, I would not trade those years for anything. God was shaping me, breathing life into my journey. And He will do the same for you.

Be strong and courageous, for the Lord will go before you (Joshua 1:9).

~ from Pastor Orlando's heart

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Today we celebrate Bonnie McLeod on her special day! In the coming week, we also rejoice with John McDowell, Florence Hanson, Rod Schafer, and Debra Chenoweth. May the Lord bless each of you with joy, health, and a year filled with His goodness.

WELCOME BACK FROM SUMMER HOLIDAYS! Spending time with family is so important because of all the love and support it provides. Being with family helps build principles and improves overall mental health. It is a key part of both physical health and mental well-being. Family time builds confidence, and parents/teachers can help children develop self-esteem through skills such as problem-solving and communication. They can also model the ability to "love one another" (John 13:34–35). Put down your phone, gather together, and create fun and meaningful memories, healthy individuals, and strong family bonds. Family is what makes us who we are! ~ Your Health Ministry Team

CHCS APPLE FUNDRAISER Support CHCS by ordering apples September 2–17. Visit www.collegeheightschristianschool.ca (Forms tab) for details and the order form. Payment due September 17.
